SNAKES REVERED BY HINDOOS

No High-Caste Man Will Ever Kill One—Supposed to Be Guardian of Treasure.

The Hindoos regard snakes with a reverence which is so great that no high-caste man will kill a snake, and if one should lodge itself in a house no effort will be made to dislodge it. On the other hand, every care would be taken to supply it with proper food; and if any member of the family should be bitten no effort would be made to save the unfortunate victim.

The snake is supposed to be guardian of treasures, and many stories are told of its doings in this capacity, several of which make mention of a mysterious stone called the Sheeshnag, which the old cobra is supposed to carry in its forehead. It is said to be crescent shaped and to sparkle with the brilliance of a diamond. The possessor of such a stone will always have good luck and be able to perform many mystic charms, in addition to securing an absolute remedy against poisons of every kind.

The snake is sacred to the God Vishnu, who is often seen in rude temple paintings, reclining on the coiled-up body of a large specimen with many heads, the upreared neck and expanded hood being curved over the god's head.

NOT WORTH IT

Chumleigh—There are times, Miss Sharpe, when I don't know my own mind.

Miss Sharpe—Why don't you have it tagged, then?

VALUE OF FRESH AIR.

The absurd dread of "night air"—which simply means fresh air at night—is one of the most harmful superstitions ever cherished by the human race.

Fresh air is clean air. You would not dream of eating from dirty dishes. Well, when you sleep in a closed room you are simply filling your lungs—for seven or eight hours at a stretch—with dirty air. Is it any wonder that you rise the next morning sluggish and unrested, perhaps with a dull headache and an unpleasant taste in your mouth? Your system has been poisoned, that's all.

Perhaps you think you have ventilated your bedroom sufficiently by leaving the windows open for a half hour or so before you retire. That's a mistake. One person can exhaust all the oxygen in an unventilated room in an hour. Furthermore, to be fresh, air should be in motion. Stagnant air is foul air, just as stagnant water is foul water.

Winter or summer, one window of your sleeping room should be wide open. If the room is cold, put on extra bedding, wear warm night clothes, take a hot-water bag to bed with you if necessary.

Don't worry about taking cold. Doctors realize and preach nowadays that colds, sore throats, bronchitis and tuberculosis are caused not by cold air but by bad air.

HE COULDN'T AGREE.

"Come," said Brown, "you must admit that the meat eater is more virile than the vegetarian, more commanding, more impressive and more dictatorial."

"I—I'm afraid I can't quite agree with you," said the other man. "My wife is a vegetarian."

NO TROUBLE AT ALL.

Kitty—But, Jack, are you sure that you could be true to one girl?
Jack—Why, I could be true to a dozen.

ITS NATURE.

"Cotton has some dire possibilities as shipping freight, hasn't it?"
"Yes, but then cotton is naturally a helpful subject."

Old Lady's Sage Advice

Knoxville, Tenn.—Mrs. M. M. Towe, of 102 West Main Street, this city, says: "If you had seen me, before I began to take Cardui, you would not think I was the same person. Six doctors failed to do me good, and my friends thought I would die. I could hardly get out of bed or walk a step. At last an old lady advised me to take Cardui, and now I can go most anywhere. All ailing women need Cardui, a gentle, refreshing tonic, especially adapted to their peculiar ailments. It is a reliable vegetable remedy, successfully used for over 50 years. You ought to try it."

HEIGHT OF SMELTER STACKS

Saving in Metals in Smelting Process Increases With Altitude of Stack.

It is generally supposed that the stacks of smelters are built to a great height in order to get rid of the smoke. That is partially the reason, but it is principally because the higher the stack the greater the saving in metals to the smelting company. The action of the blast furnaces carries fine dust containing minute particles of gold or silver out with the fumes. This is first precipitated in what is called a dust chamber, a room several hundred feet in length and many times wider than the vent from the furnace. Much of the dust settles there. Then the fumes from the molten metal enter the stack. By that time their temperature is greatly reduced. The higher the stack the cooler the dust will become, and the wider it is the slower, relatively, it will move as it approaches the top. After it cools it loses a measure of its buoyancy and settles down to the base of the stack. The dust is gathered up by mechanical scrapers in the flue chambers, is dampened and pressed into little disks like biscuits. When these dry they are thrown back into the blast furnaces again.—Harper's Weekly.

SO HE COULDN'T TELL

"I gave my seat in a street car to a woman today."

"And what did she say?"

"I presume she said 'thank you,' but I became unconscious as soon as I saw her lips move."

FORGET TROUBLES.

Learn to keep your own affairs locked up in your heart, but be willing to listen to others' sorrows.

There is no use in the world in harping on the crazy tear-making events of life.

Be patient with the faults of others and be patient with your own. But don't talk about the worries and trials of everyday existence.

There is no sense in that at all. It is a tremendous waste of energy. No one wants to hear about individual troubles. Constant talking about one's troubles is a sure path to chronic fault-finding, bickering and family rows that cause more misery than anything else on earth. And what good does the talking do? The sympathy you get doesn't amount to a row of pins.

Individuals of the right sort resent being pitied. Don't be a sympathy beggar.

Smiles lead you back to youth, tears drag you quickly to old age.

APPROPRIATE HYMN.

A certain professor of divinity who was spending the summer in the Scottish highlands was invited, so the Yorkshire Post declares, to baptize the infant son of the local minister.

When the time for the ceremony arrived the guest gave out for congregational singing a paraphrase much favored on such occasions. "Let us," said he, "sing from the fifth paraphrase, beginning at the second verse: 'As sparks in close succession rise.'"

To his consternation, the congregation giggled audibly. Afterward, asking the clerk what he had done wrong, that functionary replied, "You must know, professor, the minister's name is Sparks and yonder is his tenth bairn!"

CULTURE.

"It seems to me that we are making absolutely no headway in our efforts to spread culture through this country."

"Oh, you're mistaken. We have good reason to believe that culture is spreading. We get a great many things in 'cartons' now that used to come in packages."

A FINE LINE OF COPY-RIGHTED ART CALENDARS.

The plans for your advertising campaign this year should by all means include a handsome Art Advertising Calendar for 1913. We have secured the exclusive agency for the Copyrighted Calendars produced by the A. M. Collins Mfg. Co., of Philadelphia.

This is one of the largest and most substantial Calendar houses in the United States, and the quality of their line is superior to that of any ever shown in this section.

This line will be handled exclusively by us in Christian and Trigg counties. It includes a great number and variety of subjects in full color, as well as some hand colored pictures of exceptional beauty.

The samples for 1913 will be in our hands shortly, and we shall be glad to show them to you at an early date. MAKE NO PLANS FOR YOUR 1913 CALENDAR UNTIL YOU SEE THIS EXTRAORDINARY LINE.
